

Every voter in the county should turn out on November 2 and smash the slate. If each takes a little crack at it, it will crumble to pieces on that day.

ESTABLISHED IN 1805

GRAND POSTOFFICE DEDICATION

Everything Very Well Arranged and Everything Passed Off Finely—Dr. Enfield Deserves the Greatest Praise for the Success of the Meeting.

At 10 o'clock and before the people began to pour into Bedford from all quarters to witness the dedication of the new Postoffice. The school children of Bedford and neighboring districts marched in line to the station to meet the visitors from a distance. All the grades were differently attired and bore flags and bunting. The Boy Scout Band of Saxton was a feature of attraction, and the bands of Hyndman and Bedford gave dignity and plenty of music to the occasion.

From the train the march was to Pitt Street, up Pitt to Juliana, out Juliana to John, down John to Richard, down Richard to Penn and up Penn to the Federal Building.

POSTMASTER A. ENFIELD

Dr. Enfield called the meeting to order by very appropriate and eloquent remarks. He then introduced Hon. B. F. Myers, former editor of the Bedford Gazette, who made an address on reminiscences of his early days that will be well worth publishing, and in part says:

He came here in response to an invitation from the committee in charge of this auspicious event because he owed a debt of gratitude to the people of the town of Bedford and of Bedford County, which he could never fully repay, and that his presence here today was but a small installment of his indebtedness. He rejoiced with the people of Bedford over their acquisition of a Postoffice building and congratulated them upon the service rendered them by his successors in Congress in obtaining an appropriation for the erection of the beautiful structure about to be dedicated to the postal service in Bedford. He said he did not know why he was selected as the first victim in the talk-fest unless it was done on the principle of the ancient aphorism, "age before beauty." He went on to give some reminiscences of Bedford while he resided here and edited and published the Bedford Gazette. The date of the first of these reminiscences he fixed, according to his recollection, in the summer of 1859. As related by him it ran in this wise: One night after he had retired at his home on East Pitt Street, there was a ring at the doorbell and the servant who answered the ring reported that there was a gentleman in a cab who insisted that Mr. Meyers was wanted at The Springs at once and that the cab had been sent to take him there. He accordingly went out to the street and found the Hon. W. T. Daugherty, Associate Judge of the county court, awaiting him. Judge Daugherty said that the President, His Excellency, James Buchanan, had directed him to bring Mr. Meyers to his room at the Springs Hotel as quickly as possible as he wished to see him on important business. "Oh!" said Mr. Meyers, "surely the President doesn't wish to see me at this time of the night." "Yes, indeed, he does. He is waiting for you to come in this cab. Get in and accompany me." "I then yielded to his importunity," said Mr. Meyers, and when we arrived at the Springs Hotel, there was a light in the President's room and we proceeded to go there at once. The President was in his shirt sleeves. He asked me, "Did you see the Pittsburgh Post of this morning?" I said I had not seen a copy of that paper issued this morning. "Well," said he, "that paper proposed in an editorial, that I should become a candidate for a second term of the Presidency. Now, I intend to put a quietus upon that proprietor at once and as your paper will be issued tomorrow, I have written an article which I wish you would print at the head of your editorial columns. People will regard that article as authorized or inspired by myself and will thus be convinced that I have no aspiration to another term of the Presidency." I took his manuscript and it became the leading editorial in the next day's issue of the Bedford Gazette, and I believe it had the effect desired by the President, as the Pittsburgh paper's suggestion was utterly ineffectual.

BROTHERHOOD BIBLE CLASS, ST. JOHN'S REFORMED CHURCH

The above is a picture of the Brotherhood Bible Class, St. John's Reformed Sunday School, Bedford, H. C. Heckerman, Teacher, as it appeared on Rally Day, September 26, 1915. The growth of this class has probably never been excelled in any community the size of Bedford. Starting last January with a membership of seven the progress from the beginning has been phenomenal. On Rally Day 19 new scholars were added to the class making the total enrollment 127. The boys say they are going to make it 150 before Thanksgiving. We would be afraid to contradict them when we remember what they have done in the past. Their offering on Rally Day amounted to more than $16.00. This class, together with the new Cross and Crown Class taught by J. P. Cuppett, has been an inspiration to the whole school which rolled up a grand total of 444 present on Rally Day with an offering of $41.80. That this was not a mere spurt but that the boys are in earnest is evident from the fact that on last Sunday, October 3rd, more than a hundred men were out for Sunday School.

Another reminiscence given by Mr. Meyers relative to the John Brown seizure of the United States arsenal at Harper's Ferry. He said that John Brown and his confederates at first intended to make Bedford the base of their operations and came to Bedford and took rooms at the Bedford Hotel, then kept by the late Col. John Hafer. They registered at that hostelry under assumed names as John Smith and a lot of other Smiths, all of them, according to my recollection except Cook, who hailed from the State of Indiana, and registered his own name, the others all claimed Ashtabula, O., to be their place of abode. As The Gazette office was then just across an alley way from the Bedford Hotel, I was accustomed to go to a bowling alley and a billiard room above the bowling alley immediately in the rear of the alley. One day I was introduced to Mr. John Smith of Ashtabula, O., who said, "I understand that you sometimes play billiards." "Oh!" I replied, "I play a poor game and that old six pocket table is not intended for billiards." "Well," argued Mr. John Smith, "I am also a poor player and I suppose we are not unevenly matched. So let us go play a few games any way just for pastime." I concluded that it would be childish in me to refuse to accommodate my newly made acquaintance, and I found that I could readily defeat him. Little did I think, though, that John Brown's soul was marching on with me around that old billiard table. When the whole story of the John Brown raid came out after the capture of the adventurer it appeared that the "Smiths" from Ashtabula, O., were the Browns, old John and the rest of them. They had gone from Bedford to Chambersburg, which latter place they made their base of operations as more convenient for their purposes than Bedford.

After the bands played and the children sang, Hon. John M. Reynolds was introduced. He dwelt on the beauties of Bedford County, his early life here and the memories of by-gone days.

After music by the band, Dr. Enfield introduced Hon. David J. Lewis of Cumberland, Md., who dwelt on the parcel post, of which he is "The Father," its initiation, development, possibilities and the extension of the idea to telegraph and telephone service.

The dedication was of the best and everything in most excellent order.

Among those who received invitations to be present at the dedicatory exercises, and who were unable to be present, were those who sent their regrets as follows:

Mrs. Priscilla Colvin
Mrs. Priscilla Colvin, widow of George M. Colvin, died at Schellsburg on Friday night, October 1, in her 79th year, having been born July 2, 1837. She is survived by three daughters: Mrs. Dr. A. E. Ealy of Cincinnati, Cal.; Misses Lillie F. and Susie E.; also four sons: Linden S., William E., Clarence B. of Schellsburg and Guy Colvin of Everett. Also a sister, Mrs. Mary Galbreath, 95 years of age, of Clinton, Ia., and a brother, Mose Robinson of Galena, Kan.

Mrs. Colvin was known far and wide, not only for her sumptuous meals, which for over a half century she has served from the period when covered wagons moved over the highway up to the present day automobiles, but also as a Christian of fearless courage, having been for a life time a loyal member of the Presbyterian Church.

Funeral services were conducted at her late home on Monday afternoon by her pastor, Rev. E. A. Snook, assisted by Revs. Gumbert, Quinn, Wilfong and Rose. Her sons were the pall bearers. Interment was made in the Schellsburg Cemetery.

Those from out of town who attended the funeral services were Charles Bloomer and wife of Mann's Choice, Prof. J. A. Wright and wife, J. S. Blymyer and family, J. W. Ridenour and family of Bedford; M. S. Colvin and sisters of White Sulphur Springs, and Neggle Hutton and wife of Harrisburg.

Brumbaugh Visits County

Governor Brumbaugh and his party of 100 arrived in Bedford Monday afternoon. The motor owners of Bedford and Everett and county met him at the Fulton County line and escorted him to Bedford. The town was profusely decorated with flags and bunting. In the evening a reception was given him at the Aradale Hotel at which Hon. John M. Reynolds talked on the road development of Bedford County, the old turnpike system and the beauty of the scenery of the county. Governor Brumbaugh responded by a talk on the development of good roads under his administration and the beauties along the public highway.

The party left enroute to Pittsburgh on Tuesday morning.

Butcher Prosecuted for Exposing Meat to Flies

The first prosecution under the new Meat Hygiene Law has been ordered against John Snyder, an Altoona butcher, by the State Livestock Sanitary Board.

Snyder conducts a stand in the Altoona market house and is charged with exhibiting meat exposed to flies and other bacteria carrying insects. The law also forbids butchers to permit prospective purchasers to handle meat, says State Veterinarian, C. J. Marshall, and violators will be prosecuted. The latter states that it is a dangerous and unnecessary practice not to screen meat and that most persons will not eat it if they knew that flies had been crawling over it or that it had been handled by the public.

Wilbur Fisk Bortz

On Tuesday evening, September 21, Schellsburg and community were shocked to hear of the death of their friend and neighbor, Wilbur F. Bortz.

Mr. Bortz had been an invalid for a number of years, suffering from a complication of diseases. His last illness was of very short duration and he quietly slipped into the "great beyond" before home folks realized that his condition was really serious.

He was born March 10, 1854. His whole life was devoted to agriculture. He was joined in holy wedlock with Miss Louisa Leppert, Christmas eve, 1890. To this union were born five children: Russell of Akron, O.; Anna of Huntingdon, Florence, Mae and William at home.

He was an active member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Schellsburg, and for many years was an officer of the same. The funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. Charles L. Quinn.

In the death of Mr. Bortz the family has lost a kind and loving husband and father, the church a faithful and devoted member, and the community a good neighbor and a loyal citizen. The family has the heartfelt sympathy of the community.

I. O. O. F. Visits Pittsburgh

On last Thursday afternoon the representatives of the various I. O. O. F. lodges of this district motored to Pittsburgh to visit the Orphans' Home at Homestead.

J. Reed Irvine, District Deputy Grand Master of the First District, engineered the trip and set all the machinery in motion except the autos. The object of the trip was to get representatives from each lodge to visit the Home and see the need of a better, more commodious and more extensive provision for the orphans of our lodge members.

The Home gave them a very cordial reception, showed and explained to them everything and treated the visitors most royally.

Thursday evening the visitors visited and were entertained by Magdala Lodge, No. 991, at Braddock. They had a banquet in their honor and saw the finest work in I. O. O. F. circles ever.

The trip was one of pleasure and profit. The Home will be greatly benefitted by the visit and other districts and lodges contemplate taking the same trip now, since Squire Irvine has boomed her up. All along the way were members hailing and beckoning the visitors, for all the lodges along the route had been informed of their coming. The party returned Friday, sober and jolly. About twelve cars were in the line carrying about 50 or 60 members.

THE FROCK AND ITS TRIMMING

Braid On Chiffon--Chiffon On Serge

CAPE COLLARS AND CHOKERS

New York, October 5, 1915.

Winter fashions have been fully settled upon and it is gratifying to say that for many a season, if ever, they have not been as attractive as they are this year. There is a charming variety. Fabrics are rich both in quality and coloring, trimmings are artistic, and designs are simplicity itself.

Trimming Notes

The simple serge and gabardine frocks, so much favored for all day-time occasions, are trimmed effectively with braid, designs in soutache, Hercules, and novelty braids; but the touches that render them distinctive are the curious color notes that are being introduced for contrast on many of the smart new French models.

Pink silk embroidery is often seen on frocks of dark blue serge, and a dull reseda wool embroidery is unusually smart on dark blue: this wool embroidery is one of the new notions of the winter; it appears on collars, cuffs, girdles, and trimming bands of frocks, coats, and blouses. Heavy wool worked out in a rib ef-

Colored Facings

Skirts are being trimmed considerably this winter; and there is a marked use of velvet and cloth, combined, and of velvet and chiffon, and velvet and faille. Many of the skirts are banded with velvet, wide and narrow. Some of the prettiest and smartest notions along this line are the contrasting facings. Early last spring, Paquin introduced the idea in a chic little afternoon dress of dark blue taffeta; it is now being applied to serge and cloth frocks. Many of the strictly tailored dresses of serge, gabardine, or broadcloth, show these bright colored facings; the facing generally comes down and finishes the lower edge of the skirt with a narrow piping of the color. Blue gowns are faced with rose, red, old gold, and black velvet; the effect is wonderfully attractive and harmonious.

Leather as a Trimming

One of the smart innovations of the season is the three-quarter coat of leather, trimmed with fur and velvet. Paquin introduced this at her fect to imitate wide Hercules braid, is a detail of many of the imported serge and gabardine dresses. The various conventionalized soutache patterns on a foundation of net or chiffon, often edged with a band of a flat silk braid or an edge of fur, is much in vogue for trimming the more dressy frocks; the wide braids, in numberless attractive designs, are popular as well. The standing soutache designs are favored for yokes and chemisettes and for the half belts so much a feature of the smart panel Princess dress. The wide braids are often used for an entire panel or yoke on a skirt; also for cuffs, and the standing band collars which appear on so many of these cloth dresses.

Cape Collars and Chokers

Another quaint and becoming detail of these dark cloth dresses is the collar. Many of the plain redingote serge gowns are made with single or double cape collars. Colored collars of all descriptions are being worn; turnover collars of colored velvet add a smart touch to the choker of the simple dress, and the idea of the colored chemisettes of the summer is being carried out for winter in failles and brocades, striped and figured velvets. Chemisettes of pale pink faille, made with high, unlined, unbanded collars, buttoning at the side and wrinkling about the throat like a mousquetaire glove, are worn with gowns of serge or velvet. The neckline of the dress is usually rounded in an old-fashioned curve and finished with a straight band of the material.

At one of the fall openings in Paris a chiffon afternoon frock was trimmed with wide, heavy Hercules braid; following this idea comes a frock of serge trimmed with soutache chiffon.

Interesting Buttons

Among the button novelties, both for service and for trimming purposes, there is a large gold button, patterned after the plain, four-holed porcelain underwear button; another is an acorn button of brilliants.

To Clean Copper Easily

Have you any copper utensils in your household that are a trial to clean? Why should it be when there is an easy way? Place a little oxalic acid in a dish and moisten with water enough to make a paste. Rub this paste on the articles to be cleaned, using a soft cloth. Let them dry. Now rub briskly with a dry flannel cloth, and as a result you will have a remarkable brightness.

Having the article to be cleaned very hot will make the operation even easier. Let the utensil stand with boiling water in it for a while before cleaning it.

Try this method and see how easily the percolator, chafing dish, tea pot, serving tray and many other things are made bright and new.

Good Treatment For Oily Scalps

Men and women whose hair and scalp are excessively oily have hard work keeping their hair in good condition. Dust and dirt mingle with dandruff, cling to the oily hair and scalp, clog the scalp pores, stiffen the hair roots and make proper cleansing almost impossible.

Parisian Sage is an ideal treatment for this trouble. Wash the hair not oftener than once a week, but use Parisian Sage twice daily, pouring a little into the parted hair and rubbing briskly right into the scalp with the finger tips. It drives out dandruff, dissolves the excess oil and stimulates the scalp into healthy normal action. This simple remedy can be obtained from F. W. Jordan, Jr., or any drug counter and is very inexpensive.—Adv. 7 Oct 21.

"There Is a House With a Bathroom" was an expression at one time calculated to arouse interest, but now, conditions are entirely different. To build a house without a bathroom merely raises a question as to the good judgment of the builder. People know that he has either not considered or else misjudged the importance that an up-to-date bathroom has in increasing the value of the house, both as to renting and selling value.

What man would build a house for his own use and not put in a bathroom? Then the house equipped with modern fixtures will surely attract the best class of tenants or find the readiest sale.

CONTROL THE HESSIAN FLY

Protect the Great Winter Wheat Belt From Invasion by This Pest Next Year—Late Sowing Effective.

Washington, D. C., October 5.—Sow winter wheat after the Hessian fly has disappeared and save next year's crop from the ravages of the pest, say the Department of Agriculture's experts. This advice may still be applied during the present month in the great wheat belt lying between the thirty-fifth and forty-first parallels of latitude. If the fly has been starved out by burning or disking all stubble and ruined wheat fields, and all volunteer wheat has been plowed under or otherwise destroyed, an infestation the following year may be prevented by sowing after the approximate fly-free date.

The Hessian fly of the second or fall generation is likely to infest all volunteer wheat and all wheat sown before the fly-free date. "Flaxseeds" of the second generation remain on the fall-sown wheat plants till the following April, when adults issue and produce young which begin another season of infestation. The adult flies of the second generation emerge from the "flaxseed" stage from the middle of August to late October, according to the latitude. The female fly does not live beyond 5 or 6 days, and thus it is late sowing, after the flies have largely disappeared, is the most practical and effective method employed to control this pest.

According to experimental sowings carried on for a series of years, the approximate dates to sow winter wheat to avoid the Hessian fly during years of normal rainfall have been determined. There are some points with regard to these dates which all farmers within fly-infested districts must take into account. They should be familiar with the conditions of their own localities, as to weather, soil, and latitude. They should also be familiar with their own fields. Dry weather retards the development of the fly and also that of the most important of its natural enemies, precisely as it retards the coming up of the wheat if it be sown in very dry soil and without sufficient rainfall. There is also an approximate difference of about one day to each 100 feet of elevation.

There is, of course, a serious objection to the late sowing method to control the Hessian fly, and that is the danger that the plants will not make sufficient growth to withstand the winter. This objection, however, may be largely overcome by proper cultural methods. Much of the delay in the growth of late-sown plants in the fall can be eliminated by paying close attention to the preparation of the soil and to the quality of the seed. The best advice that can be given is to begin the preparation of the field in the fall precisely as though it was expected to sow at a very early date, but instead of sowing use the disk harrow and the roller, even after it appears to be a waste of labor to till the field further.

When a finely pulverized, compact seed bed has been secured, the seed should be selected, and this should be done with the point in view that unnaturally shriveled or otherwise imperfect kernels can not produce healthy wheat plants. When the kernel sprouts it at once sends fibrous roots down into the soil from which to draw nourishment for the young plant, and if little or no nourishment is secured the wheat plants are put into somewhat the condition of stunted calves, pigs, or other farm animals which are underfed.

Wheat plants can not secure prompt and ample nourishment if the roots must make their way about among clods due to poor preparation of the soil, or in soil that lacks in fertility. The farmer, then, should begin the preparation of his soil with the object of delaying the sowing of the wheat and afterwards of pushing the growth of the plant to the utmost until the beginning of the cold weather.

A BIT OF HISTORY.

The revenue system by which the United States became a partner in the liquor business originated during the Civil war. In order to prosecute the war to free four million slaves, the congress of the United States passed a bill putting a high tax on liquor.

When the bill had passed both houses, Salmon P. Chase, secretary of the treasury, brought it to President Lincoln for his signature. "Chase," said Mr. Lincoln, "I would rather have my right arm taken off than to sign that bill, but I reckon I'll have to do it. You say it is necessary to carry on this war to free those human slaves. We have got to do it. But tell me, Chase, will you promise, and will congress promise, to repeal this bill as soon as the war is over?" Chase promised.

But at the close of the war and before the promise could be redeemed, President Lincoln was assassinated and the promise forgotten. Doubtless had Lincoln lived the country would not today be under the domination of the legalized liquor traffic.

TREND OF THOUGHT.

At the convention in Chicago of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World no speaker evoked more enthusiastic applause than did Mr. Henry D. Estabrook, a New York attorney, when he made a plea for temperance and lauded the European rulers who are curbing the drink evil. This expression of temperance sentiment among the country's advertising men is, said Mr. H. S. Houston, the newly elected president of the associated clubs, "significant of the trend of thought. These men are in closer touch with the public feeling and desires than any other class except newspaper men. Perhaps better than politicians they reflect the general state of mind on a grave problem, and conclusions may be drawn from their attitude."

TRAVELERS WANT PROHIBITION.

Years ago the traveling man got many orders by taking his customers out and buying them drinks. In fact the system was highly approved and commonly employed. But now comes the Iowa Union of Commercial Travelers, in convention assembled, and calls for national prohibition. The very men who used to be regarded as the friends of liquor are now its enemies. Why? Because they know the saloon business cripples trade, and when trade is crippled traveling men can't sell goods. Any traveling man will tell you now that business is better in dry towns and collections come easier—Sioux City News.

BEER A POISON.

The man who uses a quart of beer daily expends enough for it to buy three loaves of bread for his family, says Dr. Winfield Scott Hall. He gets for himself a trivial amount of nourishment worth half a cent and incidentally takes into his system nearly two ounces of a narcotic poison, the influence of which is to make him less alert and therefore more amenable to accidents, to make him less efficient and therefore more likely to lose his job, and to make him more likely to suffer from toxins and infections.

CANNOT AFFORD TO DRINK.

"In and for the future it will be known that no nation can afford to drink," says Rector Saleeby, distinguished British Scientist, writing in the London Chronicle. "Every molecule of the poison alcohol means a smashed and lost molecule of sugar, the superlative food and fuel for energy, work and warmth. Nations that choose this slow suicide will go down like their predecessors, in the night of Time."

WHY HE KEEPS SOBER.

"Why don't you drink?" I asked my friend, the honest saloonkeeper. "Well, you see," he replied, "I'm a business man. I don't indulge, because I want to make money, not to drink it up. I insist on absolute sobriety among my bartenders and porters. It's bad enough for the boys to have to look at my patrons. Besides, a drunken employee is only 15 per cent efficient."—Cincinnati Republican Gazette.

CONDEMN USE OF ALCOHOL.

Forty-one of the physicians of Oshkosh, Wis., have put themselves on record in writing as condemning the use of alcoholic beverages and declaring that "organized medicine should initiate and carry on a systematic, persistent propaganda for the education of the public regarding the deleterious effects of alcohol."

POINCARÉ A TEETOTALER.

To the National Anti-Alcohol League of France President Poincaré has sent the following statement:

"You ask the president of the republic to follow the examples of other heads of states and take an engagement to abstain from all spirituous liquors during the war. That is an engagement the president takes willingly and without difficulty, not only for the duration of the war, but even afterwards. He never drinks alcoholic liquors."

Bill Mock's Method

Of Electioneering

Several Democrats have come to us and stated the methods William B. Mock, Republican candidate for Register and Recorder, is using to win Democrats to support him instead of John Line, who is running on both the Washington and Democratic tickets. He asks if they wouldn't rather support a "true and straight Republican than a half-Republican and half-Democrat?"

Now, John Line isn't any half-Republican, half-Democratic or half of anything. He is a Washington party man, an independent thinker, an independent voter and a man of most sterling qualities of character, business ability, morality, integrity and fidelity, and religious training. We are bubbling all over and rolling in enthusiasm for John Line. The Washington party couldn't have found a better man in Bedford County for this office. There may be men of greater finance, richer in lands and moneys, but to secure a man of greater and stronger fitness for that office, would be an impossibility, irrespective of any party, Washington, Democratic or even the Republican party. The Republicans don't have his equal this year at least.

John Line is on the Washington ticket and the Democratic ticket through a fusion agreement entered into in the best of faith between the two parties, and no Democrat who wants to vote for the best man will pay any attention at all to the flimsy argument of Bill Mock, an argument of the last hope and a foregone conclusion of his defeat, if every one stands up and supports the ticket with the grace of your editor. In that event John Line will get every Democratic vote in Bedford County.

Just what Bill Mock means by "true" Republican is not known. If he wants "true" to mean sucking the "tit" of Reynolds, then he has chosen the proper term, for he "hangs to" like a hungry pig after its mother has grown tired of its rooting and grunting and gets up and walks away.

If he takes "straight" Republican to mean the most bitter and vulgar against the Democrats and the most hide bound partisan, then he's it. He's straight. No doubt about that. Can any Democrat afford to go to the assistance of such a leech of Reynolds and such pulmotor of Republicanism? Nit! Not here!

Then there comes another parasite of Reynolds: Charles R. Mock. He has been serving as private secretary to Lieutenant Governor for some years and so far as Bedford people know has never been outside of Bedford to attend to duty at all. Cannot say that he did any duty. He published scandalous reports about A. S. Guyer four years ago and at the same time was doing just what he accused Mr. Guyer of doing. Can you put any confidence in his efficiency in the Prothonotary's office? None. Then why vote for him? Vote for David S. Garlick for that office. He is sober, industrious, honest, capable and one of the best men also that Bedford County affords. The Washington party has put up its best, not all its best, but its best for every office. No Democrat need feel ashamed when he casts his ballot for even the least of the Washington party men. They are all true blue, highly efficient men of the strongest characters and moral courage.

John P. Elkin of Indiana, Pa., and member of the State Supreme Court died at a hospital in Philadelphia last Sunday, where he had gone several weeks ago for treatment.

He was placed on the Supreme Court bench in 1904 and his opinions are regarded as most fair and honorable. He was called in his campaign, "Indiana Plowboy," since he was raised from the farm to the Bar and finally to the Bench.

His funeral took place yesterday at the Elkin home in Indiana. The honorary pall bearers were Chief Justice J. Hay Brown, S. Leslie Mestrozat, Robert Von Moschizker, John Stewart, William P. Potter and Robert S. Frazer. All Supreme Court Justices and former Chief Justice Fell; Superior Court Justices Charles E. Rice, George B. Orlady, William D. Porter, John J. Henderson, John B. WASHINGTON LETTER

Interesting Notes From Our Correspondent at National Capital.

Washington, D. C., October 5.—The United States now faces an acute diplomatic controversy with Turkey, in addition to its difficulties with Great Britain, Germany and Mexico. Aroused by the accounts of Turkish atrocities against the Armenians, the State Department has instructed Ambassador Morenau at Constantinople, by cable, to inform the Turkish minister of foreign affairs that public sentiment in the United States was so stirred by the reports of the Armenian atrocities that unless the massacres ceased friendly relations between the American people and the people of Turkey would be threatened.

Officials made it clear, however, that this message, though its importance was by no means minimized, did not threaten a break in diplomatic relations.

Turkey already has let it be known that she will not permit interference by any foreign power with her so-called "Armenian policy." As American life or property has not been affected, the United States government, without submitting an official protest, merely informs Turkey of the effect continued Armenian atrocities would have upon the American people.

Secretary Lansing said that no representations had been made to Germany regarding the treatment of the Armenians by the Turks. It is understood that the German embassy at Constantinople filed a protest on this subject with the Turkish foreign office.

Counsel for the Chicago packers whose cargoes of meat consigned to neutral countries were recently confiscated by the British prize court, have conferred with officials of the State Department, and vigorously declared that the decision is arbitrary, contrary to international law, and permits citizens of other governments to sell products while the United States is denied the same privileges, on the ground that the goods were destined ultimately for Germany.

Robert P. Skinner, the United States consul general in London, has been summoned to Washington for consultation on the trade situation existing between the United States and Great Britain. In London the consul general has gathered much information concerning British exports and re-exports, and it is this phase of the situation on which State Department officials are particularly anxious to obtain first-hand information from him.

Germany has sent no new note to the United States regarding the Arabic case and the imperial government's submarine policy, but instead Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, has been given full authority to carry the negotiations to a conclusion without further reference to his home government, according to a statement from an authoritative source close to the Ambassador. The Ambassador recently turned over to the Secretary of State some material, part of which was in writing, but this was in the nature of a personal memorandum, it is understood, and not a formal communication from Berlin. The next step toward an adjustment of the difficulties will be a conference between the Secretary of State and the German Ambassador.

It is the intention of the administration to stand firm for all that has been demanded of Germany. There is a belief on the part of some officials here that the German government would be quite satisfied to let the matter rest, now that it has been removed from the acute stage, but it is declared that the United States will not be a party to such a plan.

Victoriano Huerta, former dictator of Mexico, who was made a prisoner by the United States when he approached the border some months ago, presumably to organize an expeditionary force for operations south of the border, will not be released as was recently suggested by Cardinal Gibbons. Department of Justice officials assert that they have information concerning Huerta's interests in Mexican affairs that justify his detention until a provisional government has been established in Mexico. The understanding is that Huerta will not be released until the United States and the seven other American powers that comprise the Pan-American conference have recognized a government south of the Rio Grande.

The last of the Grand Army visitors have practically left Washington, after the impressive ceremonies last week in connection with the semi-centennial of the grand review fifty years ago of the Union army at the close of the Civil War in 1865. A few of the aged soldiers and visitors have remained over to witness the laying of the corner stone of the Arlington Memorial amphitheatre, which was to take place last week, but was postponed on account of inclement weather on the day set for those exercises.

Past Commander-in-Chief David J. Palmer of the Grand Army made a stirring address before the conference on national defense, held under the auspices of the National Defense League, the Navy League and the National Rifles Association, in session in Washington. "No back-fire in times of war," was declared to be the slogan of the conference, by the past commander-in-chief of the Civil War veterans. He also declared, "We must be behind our President all the time. The Grand Army is loyal to him and wants peace with all the world without sacrifice of any of our rights on land or sea."

Super battle cruisers, bigger, faster and more heavily armed than any war craft now afloat or building, and which will cost $18,000,000 each to construct and equip, will be recommended to Congress as a part of the navy building program for the next year. President Wilson, Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Representative Padgett, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, have reached a decision to this effect. The new battle cruisers are designed to make 40½ miles per hour, and they will mount six sixteen-inch guns.

President Wilson has practically decided not to call a special session of the Senate before the meeting of Congress in regular session. Although he is desirous of having the Senate's rules amended so as to give the majority power to limit debate, he is understood to have become convinced that it is better not to call the Senate together at this time.

The heavy decline in the condition of the growing cotton crop during September, according to an estimate of the Agricultural Department, is almost double the average decline of the last ten years. The forecast now is that the crop will be the smallest since 1909.

Completing a service of six months and for the most part in continuous session, the grand jury of the District of Columbia returned indictments against nearly one hundred persons. During its term 500 cases were considered and about 475 persons were indicted. Among the most important cases are those against the officials of the Riggs National Bank, for perjury, growing out of an affidavit filed in the now famous case of that bank against the Secretary of the Treasury and Comptroller of the Currency Williams last spring.

Practically all doubt as to the President's decision to indorse suffrage for women as a State issue in the forthcoming election in New Jersey was removed when two members of his cabinet and his private secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, announced their intention of voting for woman suffrage in New York and New Jersey. It is regarded as practically certain that Mr. Wilson will soon be enrolled as an advocate of the granting of the ballot to women by the States, but not by an amendment to the Federal constitution.

At the White House, President Wilson greeted Mrs. John R. Maxwell of Nashville, Tenn., a grandniece of President Andrew Johnson, who called, with her husband. Fifty years ago President Johnson reviewed the parade of the returning victorious Union army on the same spot that President Wilson occupied last week in reviewing the march of the veterans fifty years later.

Ought to Paint

I ought to have painted last year, but I hated to pay $2 a gallon. I've got to paint this year; it'll take a little more paint; I suppose 1 gallon in 10, and a little more work, I suppose 1 day in 10. My job would have cost last year about $50; it is going to cost this year $55. $5 gone. I suppose it'll be the same again, if I wait again. What if paint goes down to $1 75 a gallon? $2.50 on the job? I shan't wait; what a fool I was! DEVOE

Pittsburgh, October 5, 1915.

Dr. Americus Enfield,

Postmaster, Bedford, Pa.

My dear Sir:

Acknowledging receipt of your kind invitation of the 1st inst. to be present at the dedication of the new Federal Building at Bedford, Pa., on the 6th inst., I most sincerely regret to advise you that the pleasure of complying with your request is denied me on account of the press of public business at this time. Our court is in session at Erie, and one of the members of the legal staff is unable to be at the office on account of illness, and I am in sole charge of this office at this time. Under these circumstances, I cannot leave.

I am sure the people of the town and county owe a lasting, indebted gratitude to those who, by their energy, persistence and fidelity have made this public building possible. Besides being an ornament to the town, its presence will inspire patriotism and love of country which is the touchstone of true American citizenship.

Regretting my inability to be present, and congratulating you and the representatives of the people of the district who have given their time and energy to the completion of this project, I am,

Very sincerely,

Daniel S. Horn.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5, 1915.

Dr. A. Enfield, P. M.,

Bedford, Pa.

My dear Doctor:

Owing to the confusion and delays incident to the great G. A. R. encampment in this city last week and to the many matters claiming my attention at the departments and elsewhere, I find that I shall not be able to be present at the opening of your new federal building, to my profound regret, because I had been looking forward to this occasion as one offering an opportunity to meet many of your people and to say a few words to them which I should consider appropriate. Perhaps I may say them in part in this letter, to be conveyed by you to those who shall participate in the ceremonies which I am sure will prove interesting.

I am not among those who regard a public business as a sort of public scandal. It seems to me that wherever the public business can be better cared for in a public building than in one hired for the purpose, a public building should be provided. Undoubtedly there have been abuses in connection with the authorization of public buildings, but these abuses are negligible in comparison with the improved service enjoyed by the public as a result of the policy of congress to erect suitable buildings wherever conditions seemed to warrant. That the structure which you are about to open will serve a useful purpose and be a source of pride and satisfaction to your people I have not the least doubt; and I do not mind saying that I think money spent for the construction of beautiful and substantial buildings devoted to the public uses is much more wisely spent than if it were devoted to the building of dreadnaughts or the construction of huge guns.

Bedford is to be congratulated on the fact that she has now at her service a beautiful and commodious building for handling her postal business. It is a credit to the town and I am sure it will be regarded with pride and with growing appreciation. Nothing comes closer to the mass of the people than the postal service; and I am sure that from the new building it will be possible for you and those working with you to provide a good and satisfactory service than it has been under the old conditions.

Again expressing sincere regret that circumstances have conspired to prevent me from being with you on this interesting and significant occasion and hoping that by your courtesy my regrets may be conveyed to all who may grace the ceremonies of the day by their presence and cooperation, I remain, with cordial personal felicitations,

Very truly yours,

Warren Worth Bailey.

Teacher-Parent Association

On Tuesday evening, September 28, the first program of the present school year was given before a good assembly of teachers and parents in the High School room.

Reading: Poor-House Man—Miss Lizzie Bain. This number was of a temperance nature and was very ably rendered.

Mrs. Strock then presented a report from the Alumni Association. This association is to be commended for the step it has taken for establishing an Alumni Scholarship. At its last meeting the following rules were drawn up regulating the manner of awarding the scholarship:

1. Only students who apply in written form to the principal of the schools for the scholarship shall be considered, and they must apply before the close of the first month of school, excepting this year, 1915, when application must be made before the close of the second month of school.

2. None of the teachers, excepting the principal to whom application is made, and none of the members of the Alumni Association are to know the names of the applicants.

3. No students but those who have pursued a full four years' course in the High School are eligible for consideration.

4. The student to whom the scholarship is awarded must enter the school or college of his choice without any entrance conditions in work offered by the High School.

5. The Scholarship is to be awarded to that applicant who has the highest general average of four years' high school work, determined in the same way as for promotion and graduation.

6. The Scholarship is to be awarded each year, but only for one year to the same person.

7. In case of a tie average the scholarship committee of the Alumni Association shall determine to whom the scholarship shall be awarded.

8. The value of the scholarship shall be one hundred dollars.

It was expressed that the desire of the Alumni in drawing up the above rules was to make them broad enough to induce anyone to try for it. Any contribution will be highly appreciated by the Alumni.

Value of Teacher-Parent Association to the Community, discussed by our County Superintendent, Prof. Hinkle. The main points to be remembered were: 1. It brings the teacher and parent together in a common place to discuss a common vital cause, namely, the growing of lives of boys and girls into complete, well rounded lives. 2. In these meetings the parents and teachers learn to know each other. The lack of this acquaintanceship is the chief cause of all trouble at school. 3. It unites the home and the school. There can be no life in a community so long as its hearts are separated. 4. Parents learn to know the deportment, the scholarship, etc., of a school, and as a consequence there is less complaining. It is just as important for a man to know why the deportment of his child is down low as it is to question about a low mark in algebra. For what is education without character? 5. It keeps the school in touch with the needs of the community. 6. It creates friendship between the teacher and parent—a friendship that ought to prove lasting. 7. It is a means of getting the home and school better acquainted. 8. It is a means for uniting both in caring for the health of the pupils.

It was suggested by the executive committee that truant children should be brought in attendance and the regularity of their attendance enforced if necessary.

At the next meeting, Tuesday evening, October 26, Dr. Enfield will discuss the Value of Medical Inspection of Schools. This ought to prove worth parents' time to hear. A concert from the new victrola of the Primary room will be part of the program.

Last year a medicine cabinet was placed in the fourth grade by the Association.

The Cook Crook.

Edith Wharton, the novelist, was talking about French housekeeping. "The one drawback," she said, "is that your cook does your marketing. She markets for cash, too. The result is a very frank kind of cheating. I said once to a cook in Paris: 'Now, if you are strictly honest, I'll give you five francs extra at each month's end. What do you say?' The cook hesitated, then she answered: 'I'll think it over carefully, madam, and let you know my decision this evening.'"

DAIRY THE DAIRY

MAKING A PROFIT IN CREAM

Many Dairymen Are at Loss to Know Which Is Most Profitable Way to Dispose of Product.

(By G. L. MARTIN, Montana Experiment Station.)

The rapid development of the ice cream business within the past few years and the increased call from city trade, hotels and restaurants has created a large demand for sweet cream.

For these trades it is desirable that the cream should test about 20 per cent, but often the test may vary up to 40 per cent, depending greatly upon the method of operating the hand separator. When selling cream to creameries, the price is quoted per pound of butterfat, but for ice cream and hotel purposes it is customary to pay by the gallon. As a consequence many dairymen are at a loss to know which is the most profitable way to dispose of their cream. The following general rules may serve to determine the relative market price per pounds of butterfat or gallon of cream:

To find the value of a gallon of cream when butterfat is a certain price per pound, multiply the percentage of fat by 8 (the number of pounds in a gallon) and the product by the price per pound. At 30 cents per pound for fat, 20 per cent cream would be worth 48 cents per gallon; 25 per cent cream, 40 cents per gallon; 30 per cent cream, 60 cents per gallon; 40 per cent cream, 72 cents per gallon; 40 per cent cream, 96 cents per gallon. At 35 cents per pound for fat, 20 per cent cream would be worth 56 cents per gallon, and so on.

To find the price per pound for butterfat when the price per gallon of cream is known, divide the price per gallon by eight times the per cent of fat. At 40 cents per gallon, 20 per cent cream would be worth 25 cents per pound of fat. At $1 per gallon, 40 per cent cream would be worth 31 1/2 cents per pound of fat.

CONVENIENT AS MILK STOOL

Lard Tub or Large Candy Pail Can Easily Be Converted Into Handy Device for Dairy Barn.

(By G. A. RANDALL.)
The cut shows a handy milk stool and one very easily made. From a lard tub or large candy pail, with a key-hole saw cut out the wood at the top, as shown. One may thus make three or more legs, as desired. I find four are best. The top hoop must be removed to do this. Remove the side handles or bail and cut in the center of the bottom two semicircular openings to fit the hands as desired, these for a handle. This stool is stout, light and the right height for an ordinary person.

Most Profitable Cow.

The dairy farmer realizes that the comfortable cow is the most profitable cow and that induces him to look after the comfort of all his stock. Naturally he gets better returns from them.

Cleaning Dairy Pails.

In cleaning the dairy pails, special attention must be given the ears and seams, else dirt and milk will be lodged there, souring and tainting the milk as soon as drawn.

Unprofitable Cow.

There is no longer an excuse for the unprofitable cow, the Babcock test and a pair of scales, and it is easy to ascertain whether or not she is "delivering the goods."

DAIRY NOTES

To have your cows milk long, milk them clean.

Uneven salting and working make streaky butter.

Good cows are the first essential of profitable dairying.

It pays to please and satisfy a cow. A happy cow is a profitable cow.

Use the curry comb and brush on the dairy cow every day. It pays.

To feed economically, cows should be fed as individuals, not as a herd.

Cream that is being ripened should be strained several times before it is ready for churning.

There is more money in feeding a steer than in feeding a poor dairy cow, and much less work.

Protect the cream and milk from being contaminated by stable air by keeping the cans covered.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—At a vestry meeting of the Market Square church Gail Sargent listens to a discussion about the sale of the church pews to Edward E. Allison, local politician, and then asked her opinion of the church by Rev. Smith Boyd, says it is apparently a lucrative business enterprise. CHAPTER II—Allison takes Gail riding in his motor car. When he suggests he is entitled to rest on the laurels of his achievements, she asks the disturbing question, "Why?" CHAPTER III—Gail, returning to her Uncle Jim's home from her drive with Allison, finds cold disapproval in the eyes of Rev. Smith Boyd, who is calling there. CHAPTER IV—At a bobsled party Gail finds the world uncomfortably full of men, and Allison tells Jim Sargent that his new ambition is to conquer the world. CHAPTER V—Allison starts a campaign for consolidation and control of the entire transportation system of the world. CHAPTER VI—Gail becomes popular and Aunt Helen thinks it necessary to advise her as to matrimonial probabilities. CHAPTER VII—Allison gains control of transcontinental traffic and arranges to absorb the Vedder court tenement property of Market Square church. CHAPTER VIII—Gail visits Vedder court, and meeting Boyd there, tells him that the cathedral Market Square church proposes to build out of profits wrung from squander. CHAPTER IX—Gail becomes the center of magnetic attraction for the men of her aunt's social set. CHAPTER X—At a meeting of the seven financial magnates of the country, Allison organizes the International Transportation Company. CHAPTER XI—Rev. Smith Boyd undertakes Gail's spiritual instruction and Gail unconsciously gives Allison a hint that solves the Vedder court problem for him. CHAPTER XII—On an inspection trip to Allison's new subway the tunnel caves in and imprisons the party, who are rescued by the operations of Allison and Boyd. CHAPTER XIII—The newspaper accounts of the subway accident place Gail in the spotlight and drive her to her home in the West. Her friends plot to coax her back. CHAPTER XIV—Dick Rodley is sent to lure Gail and Arly back to New York, and succeeds.

"Dick!" cried a voice just behind Gail's ear. Gail had not known that anyone was leaning heavily on her shoulders, but now she and Arly, with one accord, turned and raced for the vestibule.

"You handsome thing!" cried Arly, as he stepped into the hall and held out a hand to each of them "I've a notion to kiss you!"

"All right," he beamed down on her, sparing another beam for Gail. No, Gail had not exaggerated in memory the magic of his melting eyes. It could not be exaggerated!

"There aren't any words to tell you how welcome you are!" said Gail, as the butler disappeared with his hat and Inverness.

"What on earth brought you here to bless us?" demanded Arly.

"I came to propose to Gail," announced Dick calmly, and took her hand again, bending down on her that wonderfully magnetic gaze, so that she was panic-stricken in the idea that he was about to proceed with his project right on the spot.

"Wait until after the dance," she laughingly requested, drawing back a step and blushing furiously.

"We're wasting time," protested

There's a "colic" and a "headache" and a "bonehead" in history. "Economy" grades are a crime. "Sociology's" depths are a mystery, and merely good "fillers" of time. Out on the campus he shies at twin beacons, the co-ed and the co-ed. As they pass; and even the grim-visaged faculty weakens. In fact all he's head of his class.

Arly "Hurry on in, Dick. We want to exhibit you."

"I don't mind," consented Dick cheerfully, and stepped through the doorway, where he made a decided sensation.

Eleven girls dreamed of his melting eyes that night; and the town boys lost their monopoly. Viewing Gail's victorious scramble with Arly for Dick's exclusive possession, their friends unanimously reduced them to the ranks.

After the dance, Dick made good his threat with Gail, and formally proposed, urging his enterprise in coming after her as one of his claims to consideration; but Gail, laughing, and liking him tremendously, told him he was too handsome to be married, and sent him back home with a fresh gardenia in his buttonhole. That night Arly and Gail sat long and silently on the comfortable couch in front of Arly's fireplace, the one in fluffy pink fur-tively studying the one in fluffy pink fur under her black eyelashes. The one in pink was gazing into the fire with far-seeing brown eyes, and was braiding and unbraidling, with slender white fingers, a flowing strand of her brown hair.

"Gail," ventured the one in blue.

"Yes." This abstractedly.

"Aren't you a little bit homesick? I am."

"So am I!" answered Gail, with sudden animation.

"Let's go back!" excitedly.

"When?" and Gail jumped up.

CHAPTER XV.

The Rector Knows.

Rev. Smith Boyd came down to breakfast with a more or less hollow look in his face, and his mother, inspecting him keenly, poured his coffee immediately. There was the trace of a twinkle in her eyes, which were nevertheless extremely solicitous.

"How is your head?" she inquired.

Rev. Smith Boyd dutifully withdrew his mind from elsewhere, to consider that proposition justly. "All right, thank you," he decided, and he fell into exactly such a state of melancholy, trifling with his grapefruit, as Mrs. Boyd wished to test. She focused her keen eyes on him microscopically.

"Miss Sargent is coming back to-night; on the six-ten train."

There was a clatter in Rev. Smith Boyd's service plate. He had been awkward with his spoon, and dropped it.

"That is delightful news," he returned with frank enthusiasm which was depressing to his mother.

Mrs. Boyd had nothing more to say. She watched her son Tod start vigorously at his grapefruit, with a vivacity which seemed to indicate that he might finish with the rind. He drew his eggs energetically toward him, buttered a slice of toast, and finished his breakfast. Suddenly he looked at his watch.

"I have an extremely busy day before me," he told her briskly, and feeling to see if he had supplied himself with handkerchiefs, he kissed his mother, and was gone without another word about Gail! She could have shaken him in her disappointment. What was the matter with Tod?

Rev. Smith Boyd sang as he went out of the door, not a tune or any set musical form, but a mere unconscious testing of his voice. It was quite unusual for him to sing on the way to Vedder court, for he devoted his time to this portion of his duties because he was a Christian. He had sympathy, more than enough, and he both understood and pitied the people of Vedder court, but, in spite of all his intense interest in the deplorable condition of humanity's weak and helpless, he was compelled to confess to himself that he loathed dirt.

Vedder court was particularly perfect in its specialty this morning. The oily black sediment on its pavements was streaked with iridescence, and grime seemed to be shedding from every point of the drunken old buildings. They even seemed to leer down at Rev. Smith Boyd, as if his being the only clean thing in the street were an impertinence, which they would soon rectify.

A half intoxicated woman, her front teeth missing and her colorless hair straggling, and her cheekbones gleaming with the high red of debauchery, leered up at him as he passed. A curly-headed youngster, who would have been angelically beautiful if he had been washed and his native blood purified from him, threw mud at Rev. Smith Boyd, out of a mere artistic desire to reduce him to harmony with his surroundings. A mousthy old woman, with hands clawed like a parrot's, begged him for alms, and he was ashamed of himself that he gave it to her with such shrinking. The Master could not have been like this. A burly "panhandler" stopped him with an artificial whine. A cripple, displaying his ugly deformity for the benefit and example of the unborn, took from him a dole and a wince of repulsion.

"The poor ye have always with ye!" For ages that had been the excuse for such offenses as Vedder court. They were here, they must be cared for within their means, and no amount of pauperizing charity could remove them from the scheme of things. In so far, Market Square church felt justified in its landlordship, that it nursed squalor and bred more. Yet, somehow, the rector of that solidly respectable institution was not quite satisfied, and he had added a new expense to the profit and loss account in the ledger of this particular house of God. He had hired a crew of forty muscular men, with horses and carts, and had caused them to be deputized as sanitary police, and had given them authority to enter and clean; which may have accounted for the especially germ-laden feel of the atmosphere this morning. Down in the next block, where the squad was systematically at work, there were the sounds of countless individual battles, and loud mouthings of the fundamental principles of anarchy. A government which would force soap and deodorizers and germicides on presumably free and independent citizens, was a government of tyranny; and it had been a particular wisdom, on the part of the rough-hewn faced man who had hired this crew, to select none but accomplished brick dodgers. In the ten carts which lined the curb on both sides there were piled such a conglomerate mass of nondescript fragments of everything undesirable that the rector felt a trace better, as if he had erased one mark at least of the long black score against himself. Somehow, recently, he had acquired an urgent impulse to clean Vedder court!

He turned in at one of the largest and most uninviting of the rickety stairways. He skipped, with a practiced tread, the broken third step, and made a mental note to once more take up, with the property committee, the battle of minor repairs. He stopped at the third landing, and knocked at a dark door, whereupon a petulant voice told him to come in. The petulant voice came from a woman who sat in a broken rockered chair, with one leg held stiffly in front of her. She was heavy with the fat which rolls and bulges, and an empty beer pail, on which the froth had dried, sat by her side. On the rickety bed lay a man propped on one elbow, who had been unshaven for days, so that his sandy beard made a sort of layer on his square face. The man sat up at once. He was a trifle undersized, but broad-shouldered and short-necked, and had enormous red hands.

"How are you today, Mrs. Rogers?" asked the rector, sitting on a backless and bottomless chair, with his hat on his knees, and holding himself small, with an unconscious instinct to not let anything touch him.

"No better," replied the woman, making her voice weak. "I'll never know a well day again. The good Lord has seen fit to afflict me. I ain't saying anything, but it ain't fair."

Rev. Smith Boyd could not resist a slight contraction of his brows. Mrs. Rogers invariably introduced the Lord into every conversation with the rector, and it was his duty to wrestle with her soul, if she insisted. He was not averse to imparting religious instruction, but, being a practical man, he could not enjoy wasting his breath.

"There are many things we cannot understand," he granted. "What does the doctor say about your condition?"

"He don't offer no hope," returned the woman, with gratification. "This knee joint will be stiff till the end of my days. If I had anything to blame myself with it would be different, but I ain't. I say my prayers every night, but if I'm too sick, I do it in the morning."

"Can that stuff!" growled the man on the bed. "You been prayin' one a day ever since I got you, and nothin's ever happened."

"I've brought you a job," returned Rev. Smith Boyd promptly. "I have still ten places to fill on the sanitary squad which is cleaning up Vedder court."

The man on the bed sat perfectly still.

"I can't do it," he regretted. "I ain't got no pay, and I ain't got no stationery engineer." He was satisfied enough in his course of reasoning to lay a stubby finger on his palm. "If I take this job I'll stop me from lovin' my wife, and I might miss a peck of corn."

"You won't accept it," and he rose, with extremely cold courtesy, to accommodate you, but I'll still, an art which he had learned to great perfection. "All we need is the loan of a little money while I'm at it."

"I'll give it to you," announced Rev. Smith Boyd firmly. "I've got you an opportunity to earn, and you won't accept it. That's your responsibility."

"I'd better take it, Frank," said the woman, losing a little of the weariness of her voice.

"I'll tend to your own business," advised Mr. Rogers in return. "You're supposed to run the house, and I'm supposed to earn the living! Reverend Boyd, if you'll lend me two dollars till a week from Saturday—"

"I told you no," and the rector started to leave the room.

There was a knock at the door. A thick-armed man with a short, wide face walked in, a pail in one hand and a scrubbing brush in the other. On the back of his head was pushed a bright blue cap, with "Sanitary Police" on it, in tarnished braid. Mr. Rogers stood up.

"What do you want?" he quite naturally inquired.

"Clean up," replied the sanitary policeman, setting down his pail and ducking his head at the rector, then mopping his brow with a bent forefinger, while he picked out a place to begin.

"Nothin' doing!" announced Mr. Rogers, asfame with the dignity of an outraged householder. "Good-night!" and he advanced a warning step.

The wide-set sanitary policeman paused in his survey long enough to wag a thick forefinger at the outraged householder.

"Don't start anything," he advised. "There's some tough mugs in this block, but you go down to the places I've been, and you'll find that they're all clean."

With these few simple remarks, he turned his back indifferently to Mr. Rogers, and, catching hold of the carpet in the corner with his fingers, he lifted it up by the roots.

"There's no use buckin' the government," Mr. Rogers decided, after a critical study of the sanitary policeman's back, which was extremely impressive. "It's a government of the rich for the rich. Has a poor man got any show? I'm a capable stationery engineer. All I ask is a chance to work—at my trade." This by an afterthought. "If you'll give me two dollars to tide me over—"

Rev. Smith Boyd stepped out of the way of the sanitary policeman, and then stepped out of the door.

"And you call yourself a minister of the Gospel!" Mr. Rogers yelled after him.

That was a sample of the morning's work, and Rev. Smith Boyd felt more and more, as he neared luncheon time, that he merited some consideration, if only for the weight of the cross he bore. There were worse incidents than the abuse of men like Rogers; there were the hideous sick to see, and the genuinely distressed to comfort, and depthless misery to relieve; and any day in Vedder court was a terrific drain, both upon his sympathies and his personal pocket.

He felt that this was an exceptionally long day.

Home in a hurry at twelve-thirty. A scrub, a complete change of everything, and a general feeling that he should have been sterilized and baked as well. Luncheon with the mother who saw what a long day this was, then a far different type of calls; in a sedate black car this time, up along the avenue, and in and out of the clean side streets, where there was little danger of having a tire punctured by a wanton knife, as so often happened in Vedder court.

Away to Vedder court again, dismissing his car at the door of Temple mission, and walking inside, out of range of the leers of those senile old buildings, but not out of the range of the peculiar spirit of Vedder court, which manifested itself most clearly to the olfactory sense.

The organ was playing when he entered, and the benches were half filled by battered old human remnants, who pretended conversion in order to pick up the crumbs which fell from the table of Market Square church. Chiding himself for weariness of the spirit, and comforting himself with the thought that one greater than he had faltered on the way to Golgotha, he sat on the little platform, with a hymn book in his hand, and when the prelude was finished, he devoted his wonderful voice to the blasphemy.

The organist, a volunteer, a little old man who kept a shoemaker's shop around the corner, and who played sincerely in the name of helpfulness, was pure of heart.

The men with the rough-hewn countenance, unfortunately not here today, was also sincere in an entirely unspiritual way; but, with these exceptions, and himself, of course, the rector knew positively that there was not another uncalloused creature in the room, not one who could be reached by argument, sympathy or fear! They were past redemption, every last man and woman; and, at the conclusion of the hymn, he rose to cast his pearls before swine, without heart and without interest; for no man is interested in anything which cannot possibly be accomplished.

With a feeling of mockery, yet upheld by the thought that he was holding out the way and the light, not only seven times but seventy times seven times, to whatever shred or crumb of divinity might lie unsuspected in these sterile breasts, he strove earnestly to arouse enthusiasm in himself so that he might stir these dead ghosts, even in some minute and remote degree.

Suddenly a harsh and raucous voice interrupted him. It was the voice of Mr. Rogers, and that gentleman, who had apparently secured somewhere the two dollars to tide him over, was now embarked on the tide. He had taken just enough drinks to make him ugly, if that process were possible, and he had developed a particularly strong resentment of the latest injustice which had been perpetrated on him. That injustice consisted of Rev. Smith Boyd's refusal to lend him money till a week from next Saturday night; and he had come to expose the rector's shallow hypocrisy. This he proceeded to do, in language quite unsuited to the chapel of Temple mission and to the ears of the ladies then present, most of whom grinned.

The proceedings which followed were but brief. Rev. Smith Boyd requested the intruder to stop. The intruder had rights, and he stood on them! Rev. Smith Boyd ordered him to stop; but the intruder had a free and independent spirit, which forbade him to accept orders from any man! Rev. Smith Boyd, in the interests of discipline, without which the dignity and effectiveness of the cause could not be upheld, and pleased that this was so, ordered him out of the room. Mr. Rogers, with a flood of abuse which displayed some versatility, invited Rev. Smith Boyd to put him out; and Rev. Smith Boyd did so. It was not much of a struggle, though Mr. Rogers tore two benches loose on his way, and, at the narrow door through which it is difficult to thrust even a weak man, because there are so many arms and legs attached to the human torso, he was compelled to practically pitch him, headlong, across the sidewalk and over the curb and into the gutter! The victim of injustice arose slowly, and turned to come back, but he paused to take a good look at the stalwart young perpetrator, and remembered that he was thirsty.

Rev. Smith Boyd found himself standing in the middle of the sidewalk, with fists clenched and his blood surging. The atmosphere before his eyes seemed to be warm, as if it were reddened slightly. He was tingling from head to foot with a passion which he had repressed and throttled and smothered since the days of his boyhood! He had striven, with a strength which was the secret of his compelling voice, to drive out of him all earthly dross, to found himself on the great example which was without the cravings of the body; he had sought to make himself spiritual; but, all at once, this conflict had roused in him a raging something, which swept up from the very soles of his feet to his twirling brain, and called him man!

For a quivering moment he stood there, alive with all the virility which was the richer because of his long repression. He knew many things now, many things which ripened him in an instant, and gave him the heart to touch and the mind to understand and the soul to flame. He knew himself, he knew life, he knew, yes, and that was the wonderful miracle of the flood which poured in on him, he knew love!

He reached suddenly for his watch. Six-ten. He could make it! Still impelled by this new creature which had sprung up in him, he started; but at the curb he stopped. He had been in such a whirl of emotion that he had not realized the absence of his hat. He strode into the mission door, and the rays of the declining sun, struggling dimly through the dingy glass, fell on the scattered little assemblage—as if it had been sent to touch them in mercy and compassion—on

Old and New Way To Treat Catarrh

Breathing a Germ Killing Air Endorsed by Actual Results.

The discovery of Hyomei has wrought a wonderful change in the treatment of catarrh.

Prior to three years ago the medicines ordinarily employed in the cure of this disease were drugs, sprays, lotions, etc. In some instances they benefited, but the improvement was not lasting.

With Hyomei you take into the air passages of your throat and head a balsamic air that goes into the minutest cells, and should effectually kill all germs and microbes of catarrh. Its purpose is to enter the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood, and restore health to the whole system. Many astonishing testimonials have been received from those who have been helped by Hyomei.

A complete outfit is inexpensive and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for several weeks' treatment.

Perhaps the strongest evidence that can be given to doubters, is the fact that F. W. Jordan, Jr., has so much faith in Hyomei that he sells every package under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it does not relieve.—Adv. Oct. 7 & 22

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course, the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 10

ELIJAH TAKEN UP INTO HEAVEN.

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 2:1-12a.
GOLDEN TEXT—In thy presence is fullness of joy, at thy right hand there are pleasures forever more.—Ps. 16:11.

This chapter is in type the Christian's chapter. There are two chief divisions: (1) Translation vv. 1-12; (2) reception and use of power vv. 12-25. The event occurred probably 899 B. C. This is a wonderful lesson for youth as it emphasizes that the way to heaven is the way to the best of life.

I. Elisha's Testing, vv. 1-8. Since Carmel, Elijah had largely been working according to the "still small voice." He had revived the schools of Samuel, but now in some way notice was sent from God that the time of his departure was at hand. How Elisha learned this fact the record does not suggest, but he had had a great object lesson in Elijah's faithful, step-by-step obedience to Jehovah's word and doubtless was listening keenly for Elijah's words and for the voice of Jehovah. This explains Elisha's tenacity. Gilead (v. 1) means "wheel"—our reproach rolled away, and is a picture of our salvation (I. Peter 5:7; Ps. 55:22). Elijah had already learned the lesson of being supplanted by a younger man and so he gracefully allows Elisha to follow him. "Bethel," the house of God, was a good place to tarry but not for Elisha at this time. Now (v. 3) fifty "sons"—pupils—of the prophet seek to dissuade Elisha. Knowing something was about to happen, they "stood to view afar off," but were not willing to draw nigh, to follow like Elisha. They thereby failed to reap a rich reward (John 12:26). Jericho (v. 4) means "fragrance." It is the place of temptation (I. Cor. 10:13). This was 14 miles farther and contained a settlement of prophets. Again Elijah and Elisha passed on, the one to glory, the other to the fullness of the Holy Spirit. At Jericho (v. 5) the "sons of the prophet" evidenced greater interest than those at Bethel, but in reply to their challenge Elisha commanded silence. The last difficulty to confront them was Jordan (death), but they do not hesitate, for God had provided even for that contingency. Neither are we to hesitate but willingly "die unto self." Here the aged prophet exercised his supernatural power and they "went over on dry ground" (v. 8). Though this journey seems to have been revealed only stage by stage, yet it was direct to the final goal, and at each stage, though they saw not the end, they knew where to go next. This loyalty of Elisha to Elijah is a great lesson for us to follow in our service of Christ—our privilege of loyalty to his cause and the blessing which will result thereby. No great victory or blessing ever comes without much travail and testing.

II. Elijah's Translation, vv. 9-12a. Even as in the first section we see in type the plan of salvation so in this section we are taught the resultant facts and the experiments which come to us when the blessing is received. Elisha is now encouraged to "ask," yet we have a like promise from a greater than Elijah which we too often neglect (John 14:13, 15:17). Elijah was such a mighty man of prayer (James 5:17, 18) that he was on intimate terms with God and could therefore make such an offer to Elisha (see Acts 8:15, 17). Notice that the "fifty sons of the prophets" who "stood afar off" were not on the right side of the river to receive a like promise or enter into the same fellowship. In a sense this was Elisha's final test. Again Elijah may not have known the plan of God that a man so unlike himself was to take the place of leadership. Elijah said, however, "if thou see me when I am taken from thee," if God gives you spiritual vision to use and to understand, then he will accept you as my successor. There must be persistence to the end and spiritual vision. "As they still went on" Elijah went up, not in a chariot but attended by chariots and by a "whirlwind into heaven." (See also Ezek. 1:4; II Kings 6:17). Elijah, the man of tempestuous fire and sword, who in his hour of weakness prayed to die, is swept out of sight amid a display of God's power in and through nature.

Note the simplicity of the record—one verse as though such power were a simple and a common thing for Jehovah.

The translation of Jesus was quite different and properly so (Acts 1:9; Luke 24:51).

"And he saw it."

Elisha's eyes were open and he saw his departing chief, therefore he became his successor according to the promise.

As a visible proof of his new appointment Elijah let his well-known mantle fall, as he ascended, and Elisha took it and is recognized as Elijah's successor.

"What is heaven?" Read the last chapters of Revelation.

Do we live after death? Elijah and Moses on the Mount of Transfiguration, and the resurrected Christ prove that death is but the transference to another field of activity.

Stomach Troubles Quickly Cured.
People go on suffering from little stomach troubles for years, and imagine they have a serious disease. They over-eat or over-drink and force on the stomach a lot of extra work, but they never think that the stomach needs extra help to do the extra work.

If these people would take Tonic Tablets regularly they would be a great big help to the stomach in its strain of over-work. No matter what you eat or drink Tonic Tabs sweeten your sour stomach and stop gas belching in five minutes. The heaviness disappears, and the stomach is greatly aided in its work of digestion.

Tonic Tablets not only promptly relieve all distress, but if taken regularly will absolutely cure indigestion by building up the flabby, overworked walls of the stomach and make them strong enough to digest the most hearty meal. $1 for a 50 days' treatment. Mailed by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.—Adv. 7 Oct 4t.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Bedford Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This Bedford citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit. Mrs. Martha Davidson, 357 W. Pitt St., Bedford, says: "I hadn't been in good health for some time and now think it was all caused by disordered kidneys. I was very nervous and had severe headaches. My back ached constantly and the least bit of work tired me. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I decided to give them a trial and got a box at Heckerman's Drug Store. In every way they acted just as represented and gave me prompt relief." (Statement given October 14, 1907.)

Over Six Years Later Mrs. Davidson said: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills once in awhile since first endorsing them and they have kept me in good health."

Price 50c.—at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Davidson had. Foster-Milburn Company, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv. 7 Oct. 2t.

To Mend Celluloid

One authority says that the best way to make two broken edges of celluloid adhere is to moisten the edges with glacial acetic acid and hold them together for a few minutes until they adhere and the acid dries.

Pictures in Gardens.

Above most other arts landscape architecture is based on nature, and the art should be practiced on natural lines. The evolution of growing things, the development of distinct types of effect, although greatly varied, can be, and should be, made to bear the stamp alike of definite, though perhaps instinctive, ideas throughout the various kinds of landscape gardening, whether it be a park, an estate, a village garden or a window box. It should make a fine picture, no matter how small or how large.—N. Y. Telegram.
